- From the Library: Both works this time are about violence. The first one is about violence in society and the second one is about it in a family.

I have given four reviews of Brown's book by senior academics that well describe Religion and Violence. (Robert McAfee Brown, author of numerous books, is Professor Emeritus of Theology and Ethics at Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, California).

- "For fifteen years Robert McAfee Brown's RELIGION AND VIOLENCE .. has disturbed and encouraged people who care about justice and peace. This new edition, with its fresh introduction, 'The Examples Change, the Problems Persist', highlights contemporary issues of nuclear war, terrorism, capital punishment, the drug culture, disinformation and revolution. The total book is notable for its piercing polemics and its honest confession of perplexities about the valid role of revolutionary violence in an oppressive world."
- "For those struggling to understand violent revolution, to determine whether to be pacifist, or to formulate more than a passing stance on terrorism, this is an important book. In it the reader will find helpful definitions of violence, descriptions of the cycle or 'spiral' of violence, and particularly a discussion of the meaning of structural violence...In a day characterized by the escalation of violence of all types, this book is a classic text for beginning an ethical discussion."
- "The second edition of the widely used handbook on a Christian's approach to violence links earlier arguments to the challenges of the '80s.... Robert McAfee Brown is the North American Karl Barth of the '80s. Clear as a bell, his voice makes us inescapably aware of the spiritual threat to which North American churches too often continue to close their eyes."
- "RELIGION AND VIOLENCE is a very special book. I know of no other like it. It achieves a balance seldom found in introductory texts: comprehensive scope, sufficient depth, and a readable and lively prose ... It remains the best basic text in the field."

Jane Boucher has written Escaping Domestic House: How Women get out and stay out. In this revealing book, you will meet courageous women who broke away from abusive relationships to escape the agonizing pain and find lasting peace. Physical battery is the number one cause of injuries among women in the United States and probably the same in Southern Africa. In America it is more than car accidents, rapes and muggings combined. Boucher asks the question, are you one of the women who is being abused? She covers the material as how to:

- Recognize the signs of abuse
- Conquer timidity and helpless dependency
- Protect your children from experiencing abuse
- Destroy the controlling power of an abuser
- Heal your emotional and physical scars
- Defeat the fear of being alone
- Enjoy healthy relationship

YOU CAN GET OUT AND STAY OUT!
